INITIAL DECISION

INTRODUCTION AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

On September 3, 2013, Sherrie Curtis ("Employee") filed a Petition for Appeal with the Office of Employee Appeals ("OEA" or "the Office") contesting the District of Columbia Public Schools' ("Agency" or "DCPS") final decision to remove her from her position as an Educational Aide at Mamie D. Lee School. Employee was removed based on an "Ineffective" rating under Agency's IMPACT program, an effective assessment system for school-based personnel. Employee's termination was effective on August 10, 2013.

This matter was assigned to me in May of 2014. On July 18, 2014, I held a prehearing conference for the purpose of assessing the parties' arguments. I then issued a post-status conference order, requiring the parties to submit written briefs. Both parties submitted timely responses to the order. After reviewing the record, I concluded that an evidentiary hearing was not in order. The record is now closed.

JURISDICTION

This Office has jurisdiction in this matter pursuant to D.C. Official Code §1-606.03 (2001).

ISSUE

Whether Agency's removal of Employee should be upheld.

¹ IMPACT is the effectiveness assessment system which the D.C. Public Schools used for the 2012-2013 school year to rate the performance of school-based personnel.

Agency's Position

Agency argues that Employee's termination under the IMPACT program was done in accordance with all District of Columbia statutes, regulations, and laws. Agency also argues that OEA's jurisdiction is limited with respect to the instant appeal and that Employee may only challenge whether the evaluation process and tools were properly administered. According to Agency, Employee was properly evaluated under the IMPACT program, which resulted in her receiving a final IMPACT score of "Ineffective" during the 2012-2013 school year.

Employee's Position

Employee argues that she had originally received a signed Reduction-in-Force ("RIF") notice before she received her IMPACT score. Employee asserts that the separation was improper and inappropriate due to the thirteen years of hard work that she has performed for Agency, and that one bad IMPACT score out of prior effective scores should not result in losing her job.

FINDINGS OF FACT, ANALYSIS, AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Employee's first argument, that she had originally received a signed Reduction-in-Force ("RIF") notice before she received her IMPACT score, is puzzling. Employee does not deny that said RIF was never implemented. Nor does she explain how a RIF that never occurred is relevant to her appeal. I therefore dismiss this argument as lacking any basis and will now discuss the IMPACT evaluation instead.

D.C. Official Code § 1-617.18 grants DCPS the authority to create and implement its own tools for evaluating employees. IMPACT is the performance evaluation system utilized by DCPS to evaluate its employees during the 2012-2013 school year. According to the documents of record, Agency conducts annual performance evaluation for all its employees. During the 2012-2013 school year, Agency utilized IMPACT as its evaluation system for all school-based employees. The IMPACT system was designed to provide specific feedback to employees to identify areas of strength, as well as areas in which improvement was needed.³

In *Brown v. Watts*⁴, the Court of Appeals held that OEA is not jurisdictionally barred from considering claims that a termination violated the express terms of an applicable collective bargaining agreement. The court stated that the Comprehensive Merit Personnel Act ("CMPA") gives this Office broad authority to decide and hear cases involving adverse actions that result in removal, including "matters covered under subchapter [D.C. Code §1-616] that also fall within the coverage of a negotiated grievance procedure." Based on the holding in Watts, I find that this Office may only interpret the relevant provisions of the CBA between WTU and DCPS as they relate to the adverse action in question in this matter.

⁴ 933 A.2d 529 (April 15, 2010).

⁵ Pursuant to D.C. Code § 1-616.52(d), "[a]ny system of grievance resolution or review of adverse actions negotiated between the District and a labor organization shall take precedence over the procedures of this subchapter for employees in a bargaining unit represented by the labor organization" (emphasis added).

Section 15.4 of the CBA between WTU and Agency provides in pertinent part as follows:

15.4: The standard for separation under the evaluation process shall be "just cause", which shall be defined as adherence to the evaluation process only. (Emphasis added).

Accordingly, I am primarily guided by §15.4 of the CBA between WTU and DCPS in reviewing this matter, and I will only address whether or not Agency's termination of Employee pursuant to his performance evaluation was supported by just cause. As referenced above, 'just cause' is defined as adherence to the evaluation process only (emphasis added). Thus, OEA's jurisdiction over this matter is limited only to Agency's adherence to the IMPACT process it instituted at the beginning of the school year.

The IMPACT process required that all staff receive written feedback regarding their evaluation, in addition to a post-evaluation conference with their evaluators. IMPACT evaluations and ratings for each assessment cycle were available online for employees to review by 12:01 a.m., the day after the end of each cycle. If an employee had any issues or concerns about their IMPACT evaluation and rating, they were encouraged to contact DCPS' IMPACT team by telephone or email. At the close of the school year, all employees received an email indicating that their final scores were available online. Additionally, a hard copy of the report was mailed to the employees' home address on file.

Prior to instituting the IMPACT program, all principals and assistant principals at DCPS were provided with training materials, which they then used to conduct a full-day training with all staff members in September of 2009. The training included providing information pertinent to the IMPACT process, in addition to the positive and negative impacts associated with the final IMPACT rating. Each staff member was provided with a full IMPACT guidebook that was unique to their evaluation group. The guidebooks were delivered to the employees' schools and were also available online via the DCPS website. Throughout the year, the IMPACT team visited schools to answer questions, as well as to ensure that the IMPACT hotline was available to all staff members via email and/or telephone to answer questions and provide clarification.

During the 2012-2013 school year, there were twenty-five (25) IMPACT grouping of DCPS employees.⁶ Employee's position – Educational Aide, was within Group 17. The IMPACT process for Group 17 employees consisted of two (2) assessment cycles: the first assessment cycle ("Cycle 1"), which was between September 21st and December 1st; and the third assessment cycle ("Cycle 3") which had to occur by June 10. Group 17 employees were assessed on a total of five (5) IMPACT components, namely:

1) Educational Aide Standards—a measure of an Educational Aide's instructional support, school-wide support, positive rapport with students and families, and adaptability. This component accounted for 90% of an Educational Aide's IMPACT Score.

- 2) Commitment to the School Community—a measure of the extent to which school-based personnel support their school's local initiatives, support the Special Education and English Language Learner Programs at their schools and make efforts to promote high academic and behavioral expectations. This component accounted for 10% of the IMPACT score.
- 3) Core Professionalism—a measure of four (4) basic professional requirements for all school-based personnel. These requirements are as follows: attendance; on-time arrival; compliance with policies and procedures; and respect. This component was scored differently from the others, as an employee could have additional points subtracted from their score if the rating was "slightly below standard" or "significantly below standard."

School-based personnel assessed through IMPACT, ultimately received a final IMPACT score at the end of the school year of either:⁷

- 1) Ineffective = 100-199 points (immediate separation from school);
- 2) Minimally Effective = 200-249 points (given access to additional professional development. If, after two years of support, however, an educator is unable to move beyond the Minimally Effective level, she or he will be subject to separation);
- 3) Developing = 250-299 points (given access to additional professional development. If, after three years of support, however, an educator is unable to move beyond the Developing level, she or he will be subject to separation);
- 4) Effective = 300-349 points; and
- 5) Highly Effective = 350-400 points.

DCMR §§1306.4, 1306.5 gives the superintendent of DCPS the authority to set procedures for evaluating Agency's employees. The above-referenced DCMR sections provide that each employee shall be evaluated each semester by an appropriate supervisor and rated annually prior to the end of the year, based on procedures established by the Superintendent. In the instant matter, the IMPACT process detailed above is the evaluation procedure put in place by Agency for the 2012-2013 school year.

In this case, Employee was evaluated by the school administrator ("evaluator"). Employee received a final evaluation on the above specified components at the end of the school year, wherein, she received an "Ineffective" IMPACT rating of 178. According to the documents submitted, the conferences occurred on October 22, 2012 and May 3, 2013, respectively.

1306.4 – Employees in grades ET 6-15 shall be evaluated each semester by the appropriate supervisor and rated annually, prior to the end of the school year, under procedures established by the Superintendent.

1306.5 – The Superintendent shall develop procedures for the evaluation of employees in the B schedule, EG schedule, and ET 2 through 5, except as provided in § 1306.3

⁸ DCMR § 1306 provides in pertinent parts as follows:

⁹ Agency Answer to Petition for Appeal, Tabs 3 and 4 (October 11, 2013).

Employee does not deny that she received a copy of her scores nor does she deny having conferences regarding her scores.

Assuming arguendo that this Office's jurisdiction in this matter extends to the content or judgment of the evaluation, I find that, while Employee maintains that her scores were supposedly unfair, she did not specifically note in her submissions to this Office that the evaluator's comments were untrue; nor did she proffer any evidence that directly contradicted the evaluator's factual findings. It should be noted that the D.C. Superior court in Shaibu v. D.C. Public Schools¹⁰ explained that substantial evidence for a positive evaluation does not establish a lack of substantial evidence for a negative evaluation. The court held that "it would not be enough for [Employee] to proffer to OEA evidence that did not conflict with the factual basis of the [evaluator's] evaluation but that would support a better overall evaluation." The court further stated that if the factual basis of the "principal's evaluation were true, the evaluation was supported by substantial evidence." In addition, the Court in Shaibu held that "principals enjoy near total discretion in ranking their teachers" when implementing performance evaluations. The court concluded that since the "factual statements were far more specific than [the employee's] characterization suggests, and none of the evidence proffered to OEA by [the employee] directly controverted [the principal's] specific factual bases for his evaluation of [the employee]..." the employee's petition was denied.

Employee has not proffered to this Office any credible evidence that controverts any of the evaluator's comments. This Office has consistently held that the primary responsibility for managing and disciplining Agency's work force is a matter entrusted to the Agency, not to OEA. As performance evaluations are "subjective and individualized in nature," this Office will not substitute its judgment for that of an agency; rather, this Office limits its review to determining if "managerial discretion has been legitimately invoked and properly exercised." Thus, I find that it was within the evaluator's discretion to rank and rate Employee's performance. Moreover, the undersigned Administrative Judge is not in the position to recommend that Employee receives a higher rating since the undersigned is unfamiliar with the nature and details of Employee's job.

I find that Employee's final argument that because she has worked for Agency for many years before she received a bad IMPACT is not a legal ground for overturning Agency's action.

¹⁵ See Stokes v. District of Columbia, 502 A.2d 1006, 1009 (D.C. 1985).

In the instant matter, I find that Employee was evaluated a total of two (2) times by the school administrator, in accordance with the IMPACT rules. Employee received a copy of her IMPACT score, in addition to having post-evaluation meetings with her evaluator(s). Because Employee's final IMPACT score resulted in an "Ineffective" rating, Employee was terminated from her position. Based on the foregoing, I find that Agency properly adhered to the IMPACT process and had cause to terminate Employee. Accordingly, Agency's action must be upheld.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that Agency's action of terminating Employee is UPHELD.
